

From: <Frank_Bain@blm.gov>
To: "Paul Baker" <paulbaker@utah.gov>
Date: 7/21/2005 4:05:14 PM
Subject: Re: Coal Draw/Accurate Construction

Paul -

BLM approved and signed the EA for this project on 7-18-05 and Accurate is good to go once the bond is in place.

I have a map and can fax you a copy.

The bond amount of $8,000 is good for us. We suggested the same amount to Accurate.

Does the business license really matter?

I'll see what I can find out about the Judy#1 and let you know.

Frank

"Paul Baker"
<paulbaker@utah.gov>
To
<frank.bain@blm.gov>
07/21/2005 01:01 PM cc
Subject
Coal Draw/Accurate Construction

Do you anticipate any concerns with this project? When should I expect that the BLM might give approval (conditional, I assume, on them submitting a bond)?

The issues I see are:

1. They don't yet have a license to do business in Utah. They've applied for it.

2. We need a map. They're supposed to be getting this put together.

3. We will need a bond. It doesn't look like there will be any huge disturbance, so I'm thinking we could go with our standard $5000 for the first acre and $3000 for subsequent acres for a total of $8000. Do you have comments or concerns about this amount? We would hold the bond, but the BLM would also be a beneficiary.

On another project: Do you know anything about the Judy #1 Mine? I've never been to this site but just realized today that we list it as abandoned. It's a few miles south of Green River, and I have no idea what kind of disturbance is there.